

Appropos to the disincorporation agitation recently started in this town by a few thoughtless not to say short-sighted citizens, we would suggest that if the same amount of hot air and energy were exerted to build up the business interests of the town as is being exhausted by these parties to indirectly injure those interests, times would be much better for our townspeople. Why not engage in something more profitable for the general good of the community? Why not cease this eternal kicking against your neighbor and cast aside local petty jealousies and all pull together to improve the social condition and business interests of this town and valley?

For instance, how much more sensible and agreeable it would be for the people of Sonoma to take up the proposition of devising ways and means for converting the Gen. Vallejo and Buena Vista places into summer resorts than engaging in an agitation having for its purpose no earthly good for any one in our midst and productive of a deal of harm to others.

The Gen. Vallejo place would make an ideal resort for summer visitors and we understand Mrs. Emparan, who is a daughter of the late Gen. Vallejo, is not only willing but anxious to dispose of the place at a fair figure. As a starter let the citizens of Sonoma put all local bickerings aside and come together and pull together to devise ways and means to encourage either the railroad people or some other parties to purchase this property and convert it into what nature intended it should be—an ideal health and pleasure resort. To the disgruntled we would say stop your kicking and join hands with your neighbors to help this or some other project along that will be good for every body in both town and valley.

It is probable that most people whose knowledge of the appearance and stature of the present King of England has been gained from photographs of that august personage have believed him to be a man six feet tall and of good proportions. This is a mistake. Says the Argonaut: "The King resembles his mother in lack of stature, being only 5 feet 4 inches in height, weight 215 pounds or more, and wears a 17 1/2 collar. His waist circumference is 45 inches, 8 inches more than his chest measurement. In face, he is pudgy. All pictures of him piece him out so as to make him look six or eight inches taller than he is. His girth is reduced by the same kind of process; probably by the elongation of his body pictorially."

The dispatches assert that Frank King, while butchering a cow, found, on opening the animal's stomach, that it contained all the running gear of an ordinary sized mantel clock. The epitaph should read:

Here lies old Boss,
"Rich with the spoils of Time,"
She ate a clock,
And from the shock
Took second-ary fever,
The gastric juice,
And main-spring loose,
And the escapement lever,
Made such a noise,
No earthly fuss,
From death could quite relieve 'er.

THERE is a tempest in the world to-day. Grief and revenge and hatred are hurrying through the air. The Boers are being murdered and plundered of their birthright. The Chinese are bulldozed by every Christian nation. Ven ezuela is in the throes of revolution. All England is in tears. And the cause of it all is ignorance—back, foggy, opaque ignorance!

THE OBSERVER.

The German-American Trade.

The Germans are congratulating themselves on the increase in the German-American trade. The imports from the United States into Germany in 1900 were valued at $23,000,000 which amount is $36,000,000 greater than the imports for 1899. During the year 1900 Germany exported to the United States $1,478,000,000 worth. This amount is $225,000,000 in excess of the total for 1899. Subtracting her imports from this country from her exports to this country it is seen that the balance of trade is very largely in Germany's favor. The amount is $649,000,000. Millions are difficult sums; let us state the facts in other terms. For every $1 worth of goods the United States sent to Germany, the latter country sent $1.78 worth to the United States in 1900. But in 1899 for every $1 worth we sent, Germany sent only $1.53. Thus the balance of trade has increased in favor of Germany. It would be interesting to know whether this condition is the result of a natural economic relationship and consequently permanent or whether it is a temporary condition that will cease with our growth of population and the development of our resources. Ever since the days of Aristotle it has been one of the statesmen's dearest dreams to see his country not only politically independent but economically independent. This is, however, probably an impossibility, nevertheless the nation that most closely approaches this condition of self sufficiency is, other things being equal, the strongest nation. Germany is rapidly becoming the foremost commercial nation of the day. Her exhibit at the Paris Exposition last year surpassed that of every other country. This excellence has been attributed to the unification of all effort on the part of the Germans. And it is probable that her rise in the world of commerce is due to a wise unification and direction of effort. Furthermore the mark "made in Germany" is coming to be regarded as a sign manual of the good quality of anything to which it is attached. The natural consequence is that wherever German goods are sold they immediately create a demand. Seeing this the Emperor has no hesitation in placing the machinery of government at the service of his merchants. In other words the German government and the German merchant work together. The result is a very skillful marketing of goods. The Consular service of the United States is probably more helpful to the merchants than that of any other country. The merchants certainly have only themselves to blame if they cannot locate the foreign markets. The government tells the merchant all he wants to know about any market but does not urge him to enter it nor does it in any way advise him. In other words our government makes no attempt to organize the commercial effort of the country.

THE city of Milwaukee wants a new School Superintendent and has taken the extraordinary method of advertising for one. School Director Hoyt, at a meeting of the School Board, introduced a resolution calling for an advertisement for a superintendent. Milwaukee, he contends, ought to have the best talent in that line, and to get it the best way is to call the attention of the country to its needs.

BUT one American girl has ever married a King, and she, a New England woman, now a widow, is living in a royal palace in the country of her adoption, almost lost sight of by her American sisters and friends. The romance of this fascinating, gifted American girl, who won the hand and heart of a King—one of the prettiest of love stories—will be one of the features of the March Ladies' Home Journal.

Pity and Beauty

The most beautiful thing in the world is the baby, all dimples and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby, thin and in pain. And the mother does not know that a little fat makes all the difference.

Dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows and fear; the fat, that was comfort and color and curve—all but pity and love—is gone.

The little one gets no fat from her food. There is something wrong; it is either her food or food-mill. She has had no fat for weeks; is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers; and that is gone. She is starving for fat; it is death, be quick!

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the fat she can take; it will save her.

The genuine has this picture on it. If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

INDIAN BILL.

Taken into Custody and Charged With Insanity.

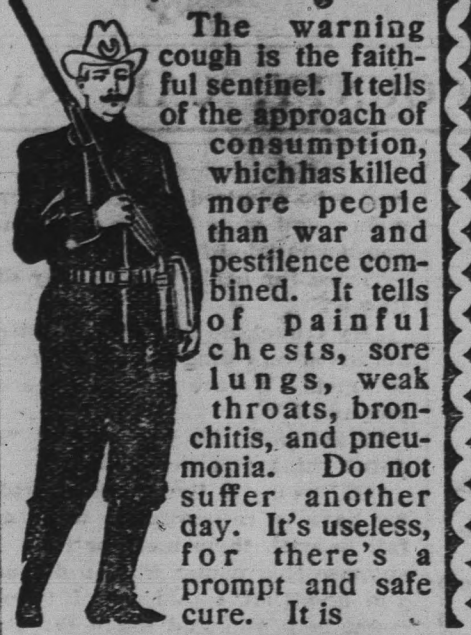

"Indian Bill," an aged aborigine who has lived in this place off and on for seventy years, was arrested yesterday at El Verano by Constable Ohm and taken to Santa Rosa to be examined as to his sanity. Bill for some months past has been working on the Weyl ranch near Healdsburg. A few days ago he returned to this place and celebrated his advent by getting drunk on red wine. He wandered down to El Verano yesterday and struck terror into hearts of the good people of that town by his vociferous war whoops and wild appearance. It is evidently a case of too much booze.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A Minister's Mistake. A city minister was recently handed a notice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best-cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

The warning cough is the faithful sentinel. It tells of the approach of consumption, which has killed more people than war and pestilence combined. It tells of painful chests, sore lungs, weak throats, bronchitis, and pneumonia. Do not suffer another day. It's useless, for there's a prompt and safe cure. It is which cures fresh colds and coughs in a single night and masters chronic coughs and bronchitis in a short time. Consumption is surely and certainly prevented, and cured, too, if taken in time. A 25c. bottle for a fresh cold; 50c. size for older colds; $1 size for chronic coughs and consumption. "I always keep a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral on hand. Then every time I get cold I take a little of it and I am better at once." JAMES O. BRIDGES, Oct. 19, 1898. El Paso, Texas. Write the Doctor. SAN FRANCISCO, January 21, 1901.

To the Residents of Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino and Lake Counties:

This company will issue for the year 1901, a new edition of "Vacation."

We shall be pleased to receive for insertion therein the names of those who did not have last year, but who intend to take summer boarders this coming season. Please advise us in your letter, location, distance from station, means of conveyance, amusements, special points of interest, charge for board, number can be accommodated, postoffice address, etc.

Almost without exception, those whom we advertised in last year's "Vacation" had a very satisfactory season and have signified their desire to continue. There are many more living on ranches or in the towns who can accommodate visitors from outside points.

Please write us as requested above, prior to February 10th, so that we may advertise you in our "Vacation" for 1901. We make no charge for this advertising—you furnish the accommodations, we will try and furnish the people.

FOR MALARIA, CHILLS AND FEVER.

The Best Prescription Is Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The Formula Is Plainly Printed on Every Bottle, So That the People May Know Just What They Are Taking.

Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called "Tasteless" chill tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

L. Enfeld Falls Helpless From a Go-Cart.

Found Lying by the Roadside Three Hours Afterward.

L. Enfeld, an old resident of this valley, was discovered lying alongside the road near the Catholic Cemetery on Thursday night last about nine o'clock by Anton Kiser. He was helpless and was badly bruised about the head and face. Mr. Kiser secured assistance and brought the helpless man into town and had him carried into the City Hotel. Dr. Rich was summoned and upon making an examination discovered that Enfeld, in addition to the cuts and bruises about his head and face, was paralyzed on both sides from his shoulders down.

It appears that Mr. Enfeld, who is living on the Polpulo Rancho near Embarcadero, had been working all day on a farm east of this place. About six o'clock he started for his home in a go-cart. An hour afterward the horse and cart passed the Kiser ranch, located about a mile this side of Enfeld's home, without a driver. Mr. Kiser surmising that something was wrong, jumped into a rig and started out to find the missing man and about nine o'clock he found Enfeld as narrated above.

It appears that Enfeld shortly after starting for his home was suddenly stricken with paralysis. The reins dropped from his palsied hands and he plunged helplessly to the ground, striking on his head and face and landing in a deep ditch alongside the road. Here he lay in a semi-conscious condition for three hours without being seen by passers by and had not Mr. Kiser discovered him, he would have lain where he fell all night. The cuts and bruises he received in falling from the cart were superficial and in themselves were quite harmless. This is the second stroke of paralysis that Mr. Enfeld has suffered, and he now lies in a very precarious condition at the City Hotel.

A Relic of the Journalistic Boneyard.

EXPENSIVE SPORT.

Another Robin Hunter Fined $20.

Robin hunting is an expensive sport in Sonoma Valley and should not be indulged in unless one has money to burn. At least that is the way Richard White, who was a guest on the Morris ranch last Sunday, looks at it.

He came up from San Francisco for a day's outing and was invited by Mr. J. B. Morris to shoot robins in his orchard, without the least idea that in doing so he was encouraging a violation of the game laws of the State.

Fortwith young Mr. White shouldered his $75 shotgun and repaired to the orchard and was soon banging away at the birds, which were quite plentiful in the branches of the fruit trees. He had bagged eighteen when Constable Ohm hove in sight and placed the young hunter under arrest for a violation of the game law, which prohibits the killing of robins at any season of the year. White was taken before Judge Cheney, who explained the law to him—that he had no other alternative than to impose a fine of $20 on him. The fine was thereupon paid by J. B. Morris, who threatens to appeal the case. Should he do so there is not the least doubt in the world but what his lawyers could punch all kinds of holes in the game law of this State which is not only unjust in some particulars but also discriminating in its nature.

Mr. Brady, Hobo.

Phil Brady, an incorrigible hobo, was arrested in this place Saturday by Constable Ohm for disturbing the peace. Brady was ordered out of town by the officer, whereat he waxed wroth and becoming exceedingly obstreperous was lugged off to the lock-up and thrown into a cell. The next morning Brady was given thirty days in the County Jail by Judge Cheney, whither he was taken in the afternoon by the arresting officer.

Endeavorers to Celebrate.

The services in the Congregational Church on Sunday evening, February 3d, will be under the auspices of the Local Endeavorers to celebrate the twentieth birthday of Christian Endeavor. A special program is being prepared and the public is cordially invited to unite with them in the service. Should the evening be stormy the meeting will be postponed to the following Sunday.

To Teach Latin.

Frido Clewe, student of the University of California, who is home on a six-months leave of absence, has volunteered his services as a teacher of Latin in the Sonoma High School. Principal Benjamin Weed has accepted Mr. Clewe's offer and he will enter upon his new duties next Monday.

Paid $60 into the County Treasury.

Constable Chas. Ohm paid $60 into the County Treasury Monday. This money represents the fines imposed and collected in Judge Cheney's court.

High Wind.

A high wind prevailed throughout the valley for several hours Thursday—night drying up the muddy places in the roads and putting them in fine condition for traveling.

A Convincing Answer.

"I hobbled into Mr. Blackmon's drug store one evening," says Wesley Nelson of Hamilton, Ga., "and he asked me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism with which I had suffered for a long time. I told him I had no faith in any medicine as they all failed. He said: 'Well if Chamberlain's Pain Balm does not help you, you need not pay for it.' I took a bottle of it home and used it according to the directions and in one week I was cured, and have not since been troubled with rheumatism." Sold by F. Duhring.

There's many a successful business man who sits in his city office and lets his mind slip back to his boyhood days on the farm. How good it felt to live! What an appetite he had! How good everything tasted! How sound his sleep was! How eagerly he rose with the sun and raced with him through the long day. And now he's a successful man. But he can't sleep. He doesn't enjoy his food. His stomach is weak, his nerves are shaken, and he no more rises with the sun to race eagerly against him. His vitality is low and now he gets no rest as if it would break loose. That's the price he has paid for success.

The mischief of the whole business is that he buys "tablets" of one sort or another to "aid" his digestion, and indulges in bromides and other nerve stimulants, just to hold himself together, and wonders why he seems to be getting worse.

The whole trouble with such a man generally lies in what is called a "weak" stomach. The food he eats does not nourish him because it is only partially digested and assimilated. No man can be stronger than his stomach, because it is in the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition that strength is made from the food which is eaten.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the strength of the body in the only way strength can be restored, by food which is perfectly digested and assimilated, when the diseased stomach (with its allied organs) is cured of disease. It is a blood-making, body-building medicine, inasmuch as blood is made from food and the body is built up by blood. It is not a stimulant, containing neither alcohol or any other narcotic.

NO OTHER DOCTOR FOR ME.

"Last spring, early, I wrote you my feelings and condition," says Mr. A. J. Vandewater, 573 West Division Street, Chicago, Ill., "and you advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (a few bottles), and then write you how I felt. I am happy to say I am getting to feel fine. In all I have taken six bottles of the 'Discovery,' and four or five vials of the little 'Pellets.' They have done me worlds of good. All my friends say: 'Vandewater, how well you are looking. What in the world have you been doing?' I tell them I have been doctoring with Dr. E. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. 'Why,' they say, 'you haven't been there?' No, I say, but I took his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and his little 'Pellets.' These medicines have wrought the great change in me. From a slow motion of a man that could hardly crawl, tired and sick all the time, and could do no work; to a man who can work, sleep, eat, and feel fine, and that tired feeling is all going away. I am very thankful that I wrote to Dr. Pierce. His 'Golden Medical Discovery' and his little 'Pellets' have almost made a new man of me. I feel young as I did at thirty years. No other doctor for me, only Dr. Pierce."

HAD GIVEN UP HOPE.

"I will express my thanks to you for the kindly advice you have given me in regard to my case," writes Miss Carrie J. Wharton, of Dunsmuir, Spotsylvania Co., Virginia. "When I wrote to you last spring I was in a terrible state of health. Had given up all hope of ever being better. I spit up my food all the time and it seemed sour as vinegar. I would have a bad sick headache every other week—in fact, my head never felt clear, and I was perfectly broken down under the strain of losing my food constantly. I had read a great deal in your books of what your medicine had done for others, so I wrote you and got your advice. Bought two bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the first dose I took I felt better. When I had finished taking the two bottles the spitting up had entirely stopped and my head was much better. I believe your medicines are just what you have said of them."

"I carefully read the booklet you sent me and shall always speak a good word for the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' whenever I have a chance. You can publish this if you think it worth while. It might induce some one else to try your medicine who was suffering as I did. It was by the testimonials of others that I was induced to try it. I shall always rely upon your advice and feel safe to do so as you tell me."

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Miss Agnes Drahm's Mishap at Milbrae.

An example of carelessness, says the San Rafael Independent, was exhibited last Saturday at Greenbrae. As the 3:30 train from San Francisco was passing the station Miss Agnes Drahms of San Quentin came through the station door and was met rather unexpectedly by a large bundle of newspapers, which were thrown by the carrier, who evidently thought they would land in the waiting room. The package struck the young lady squarely in the face and the blow came so suddenly and swiftly that she was stunned for an instant, and it was with the greatest difficulty that she managed to get aboard the train and come to San Rafael. After her arrival here she immediately went to the home of friends, where she received every attention. Notwithstanding that Miss Drahms still carries a large scar on her face, she is thankful that it is no worse.

The young lady mentioned above is well known here where she resided with her parents Rev. and Mrs. Drahms several years ago.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Mark L. McDonald Knocked Down by a Street Car.

Mark L. McDonald, the well-known capitalist of Santa Rosa, was knocked down by a street car in San Francisco Tuesday evening and had a narrow escape from being killed. McDonald was hurrying to catch the 5 o'clock boat for Tiburon. In passing across the network of tracks in front of the Ferry Building he was struck by a car and knocked down. Before the motorman could stop the car Mr. McDonald had been dragged twenty feet. His face and hands were badly scraped, but otherwise he was uninjured.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, FEB. 2, 1901.

TO A YOUNGER SISTER.

Perhaps some busy bee may have been told that you were coming, or yet, perchance, a conscience true may whisper who "talks back" to you! Ah, let that voice a story tell of one who loved you long and well, who saw your childhood's tender green burst in the bud of sweet sixteen, and upward reach until it stood the perfect flower of womanhood! Then may the lilies of the valley blow home to you on every gale, and Cupid sweet, fair roses strew where'er your gentle footsteps go! What smiling ever life's great deep, may love your every voyage keep and bring you safe through storm and breeze back to this loyal heart of mine.

A THREE CORNERED SWINDLE.

BY M. QUAD.

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY C. N. LEWIS.

It wasn't what a conservative old lawyer would call a case. I had been sent to London to look up a sharper and make him disgorge for the benefit of the heirs of another sharper. The wife of one John Saunders, an Englishman who had died in Buffalo several years previously, had put her claims in the hands of a New York lawyer. This Saunders had been mixed up in a big swindle before leaving England. Something like $20,000 had been reaped from it, but his partner in the transaction had gobbled on to most of it and had also managed to pull his neck out of the noose, while Saunders had been hunted out of the country. It was the claim of one swindler against another—no more, no less. The leverage we had consisted of a number of papers to which both names were attached. The name of the living partner was Smallwood, and it was understood that he had set up as a money lender. These papers criminalized Smallwood in a sense, but in case he was detected we could not push the case against him.

After some little trouble I found Smallwood and his den. He was a burly, big man, with a loud voice and a domineering way. In assisting to perpetrate that swindle he had had a narrow escape, and he realized that in a way he was still under the surveillance of the police, but I put him down as a man not to be easily frightened. I found I was right in this. When I had stated my errand, he laughed in my face and called me a fool. Between ourselves he did not deny the swindle. On the contrary, he boasted of the slick way in which it had been worked. He had furnished the brains, and John Saunders was the cat's paw. He had secured $10,000 of the money and escaped the law, while his partner had died to a foreign land with the remnant and died among strangers.

"My dear sir," he said as he smiled and rocked to and fro, "you were a dolt to come on any such errand. You have papers, but I would not give you the price of a dinner for them. I am solid, and you can't disturb me. Go to Scotland Yard, go to the attorney, do what you will, and I shall only laugh at you."

Neither Scotland Yard nor the attorneys could help me in the case. While it couldn't be called blackmail, it was an attempt to squeeze money out of a swindler. The one interview satisfied me that my mission was a failure, and I bade Mr. Smallwood good day with as much courtesy as I could assume. It was about lunchtime when I left his office, and I dropped into a modest restaurant for a light meal. I had scarcely got seated when a stranger who had a seedy-gentle look about him asked permission to take the opposite side of the table, saying he had some information to give me. When he had begun on our meal, he said:

"I saw you leave old Smallwood's office and followed you. Has he done you a bad turn?"

I did not give my case away in replying, but gave him to understand that the money lender had refused to do the square thing by me.

"He's a cur, a cheat, a swindler and all that's mean and contemptible!" continued the stranger, with a good deal of feeling. "He has cheated and wronged me, and I can get no satisfaction. Today, however, I learned of an incident in his past life that will give me a good hold on him. I must go to Liverpool to complete my information. If you will go along and become responsible for expenses, I will share the information with you."

For awhile I was chary of the man, thinking he might be in the pay of Smallwood, but I finally decided that I could lose nothing by trusting him. Smallwood had once lived in Liverpool under another name and had been guilty of a crime for which he had fled to Brazil and remain for several years. This man, who gave the name of Duff, proposed to go down and look up the matter and put the police on the scent. He was going to do this out of revenge, but in my case I had no revenge to gratify. I thought I might be a good thing to hold over Smallwood as a bluff, however, and I promised to reward Duff if anything came of it. In the course of a couple of hours I returned to the money lender's office. He greeted me affably and laughingly said: "I have heard that you Yankees are a persistent race, but in this case you are simply wasting your shoe leather. I suppose you have come to make a new offer?"

"I have come about that Liverpool affair," I replied, and I went on and stated the nature of his crime and the same he used to sail under.

The shot told. The man grew nervous and pale faced, and when I had concluded he said:

"How you secured your information I do not know, but I will frankly admit that it is partly correct. I have little fear that the police would meddle with me at this late date, but I do not care to have the affair stirred up. I am willing to make a fair financial arrangement with Saunders' widow."

That was a matter to be talked over at another meeting. I was a bit surprised that Smallwood should give in so quickly, but concluded that the Liverpool affair was rather serious and that like a man of sense he preferred to part with a couple of thousand and soon have it resurrected. He had rooms over his office, and I was to sup with him on the next evening but one at 8 o'clock, and the matter of restitution would be arranged. I went to the place appointed by Duff to meet him, but he was not there. I had given him my address, but he did not call on me. As a matter of fact, I never saw him again. After he had played his part he vanished.

When I made my third call on Smallwood, I was cordially received, and while waiting for supper to be served we came to an understanding. He was to give me $10,000 for Saunders' widow, and I was to give him a receipt in full. He grew sociable and jolly as the affair was concluded, and my glass was not empty until he pressed me to drink again. Of a sudden things began to whirl, and then came a blank. When I recovered consciousness, it was morning, and I was lying on a cot bed in a strange room. My head buzzed and racked, my throat was as dry as paper, and as I rolled out of bed and attempted to stand my knees gave way and let me down. A strange man came to me and talked, and as a money something to drink, but it was late in the afternoon before my brain was clear enough to understand things. As I sat up on the edge of the bed and wondered what had happened and where I was a quiet spoken man who had the look of a doctor entered and sat down beside me and felt my pulse and said:

"You will do now if you keep quiet. Let me say for your encouragement that cases just as bad as yours have been cured in three months. The great point is to avoid excitement."

"In the first place, where am I?" I asked.

"In Dr. Colwell's private lunatic asylum," he replied.

"Who brought me here?"

"Your friends. The loss of your money in that Peruvian speculation unbalanced your mind. You will be well cared for here, and if you aid me as you should your detention will not last over three months."

"I see how it is," I said as I looked him straight in the eye. "I am indebted to Smallwood for this. He drugged me and had me brought here that he might have time to fix up his affairs and skip. I demand my liberty this instant!"

"Come, come," he replied in a coaxing way as he patted me on the shoulder. "I know no one named Smallwood. Your friends in Beacon street brought you here, and Dr. Henry made out the papers. All was perfectly regular. Let us have no excitement. Dinner will be ready in half an hour. Meanwhile think it over."

In that half hour I figured it out. Smallwood had drugged and abducted me. It might or might not be a private insane asylum, but the man had surely been bribed to hold me fast for a time. If I raised a row, it would be the worse for me. If I remained passive, I would be set at liberty as soon as the money lender left the country. I decided to make the best of things, and when the doctor returned I was very quiet. The doctor returned to us at supper together in a small room and were waited upon by an old woman. He called me Mr. Perrine, and, according to his talk, I was a member of a mercantile firm in London. Next morning I was taken to walk in a narrow garden surrounded by high walls. I got sight of no other person, nor could I make out what sort of place I was in. During the day I had the use of a sitting room off my bedroom. It looked out on the rear yard, and the windows were barred. I was given plenty of reading matter, and the doctor played chess with me, and took an altogether the time did not pass unpleasantly. In the three weeks I was in the house I saw only the doctor and the old woman. At 10 o'clock one evening I was told that my cure was complete and ten minutes later was being driven away from the building in a closed carriage. After an hour's ride I was set down in a street in White-chapel, and had I been backed by all the police of London I could not have found the house where I had been held captive. Smallwood had been gone a week—gone no one knew where. While I do not believe there was anything in the Liverpool story told me by Duff, the money lender was more afraid of me than he need have been and had played me a pretty little trick to give himself time to settle up his affairs and move on. I did not go to the police officially, but I did tell the story to a detective on the quiet. How they would have regarded him at Scotland Yard may be judged from what the officer said to me. At the end of the story he winked and grinned and observed:

"What a race of natural born liars you Yankees are!"

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THE RIGHT THING TO PUT ON.

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

From the natural impulse to "put something on" a painful spot all applications for the relief of pain have arisen. The most successful have ever been poultices or plasters, and the best of these is Benson's Plaster.

No other has anything like the same power as a curative agent; it is highly and scientifically medicated, and its standard is advanced year by year.

Use Benson's Plaster for coughs, colds, chest diseases, rheumatism, grip, neuralgia, kidney trouble, lame back, and other ailments that make Winter a season of suffering and danger. It relieves and cures quicker than any other remedy.

Do not accept Capsicum, Strengthening or Belladonna plasters in place of Benson's, as they possess none of its curative power. Insist on having the genuine.

The people of every civilized land have testified for years to the superlative merit of Benson's Plaster, and 5,000 physicians and druggists of this country have declared them worthy of public confidence.

In official comparisons with others, Benson's Plaster has been honored with fifty-five highest awards.

For sale by all druggists, or we will pay postage on any number ordered in the United States on the receipt of 25c. each. Accept no imitation or substitute.

Seabury & Johnson, Mfg. Chemists, N.Y.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employee of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help. Until one day I was in a drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I get a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines."

At Bed Time.

I take a pleasant herb drink, the next morning I feel bright and my complexion is better. My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a gentle laxative. It is made from herbs, and is prepared as easily as tea. It is called Lane's Medicine. All druggists sell it at 25c and 50c. Lane's family medicine moves the bowels each day. If you cannot get it send for a free sample. Address, Orator F. Woodward, Le Roy, N.Y.

For You to Read

"What puzzled me in the beginning was that I kept losing flesh without any cause for it that I could see. I had a little trouble with my stomach, too, and after a while began to grow weaker and to cough. The cough, I thought, would soon go away and cure itself, but it didn't. It grew worse, and then I began to spit up a peculiar looking substance. I never thought of consumption, but one day I had a hemorrhage, and then was frightened in earnest and did just what you would do. I rushed to the doctor. He was either too busy, or something else, for he didn't do many good. I kept going on down hill, and the outlook was bad. Things took a different turn, however, when I heard of Acker's English Remedy for Consumption, for I took it, and it not only cured my coughing and spitting, but also built up my whole system. I took on permanent flesh, and today am just as healthy a man as you can find in a week's travel. You may be sure I always keep Acker's English Remedy in the house, and it is a good thing I do so, for one night my youngest child was seized with croup. That horse, wheezy cough was the first signal, and I lost no time in giving the poor little sufferer proper doses of this great medicine. In almost no time the disease was under control, and my child was saved. I advise every parent to have a bottle handy all the time. It serves the same purpose in keeping croup out of the house that a good lock and key serve to keep burglars out. It is both an expectorant and a tonic. It cured me of consumption and my child of croup, and I know what I am talking about." (Signed) Hon. M. HOGAN, picture frame manufacturer, 242 Center Street, New York.
